

150th Anniversary River Track

An alternative route from Clyde to Alexandra or Alexandra to Clyde is via the 150th Anniversary track on the west side of the Clutha River.

Details:

- At 12.5 Km from Clyde main street, (16km from Railhead) this is 8km longer than cycling directly along the rail trail.(8km)
- It's a very scenic track and you'll pass some of the tailings from the gold mining days as well as equipment left over from the construction of the Clyde dam.
- This track undulates a lot with some tight corners, so if you're not a confident cyclist or haven't been on a bike for a while we'd advise against using the track because you may find it quite fatiguing.
- Similarly, if you're departing Clyde late (eg around noon) and you're not used to cycling then we'd advise leaving the river track until next time.
- Please watch for other cyclists, walkers and runners particularly on blind corners

Getting to the track – Clyde end

- From Sunderland St in Clyde, turn onto Matau St near the Old Dunstan Hotel
- Head down over the bridge and take a right hand turn onto the road that loops back under the bridge.
- You'll find the track at the end of this road.

Follow the river track to the Alexandra Bridge:

Getting to the track – Alexandra end (Reverse to find the trail from the Alexandra bridge.)

1. Head southwest on Tarbert St toward Chapple St 750 m
2. Turn left to stay on Tarbert St 260 m
3. Turn right at Limerick St 120 m
4. Turn left at Kelman St 97 m
5. Continue onto The Half Mile and cross the bridge. You'll see the track heading off to your right on the far side of the bridge.
